INVESTMENT OBJECTIVE AND STRATEGY

The fund seeks to provide long-term capital growth primarily through the common stocks of companies that own or develop natural resources and other basic commodities, and also through the stocks of selected non resource growth companies.

The fund invests a minimum of two-thirds of its assets in the common stocks of natural resource companies whose earnings and tangible assets may benefit from rising inflation.

In selecting stocks, we look for companies whose products can be produced and marketed profitably when both labor costs and prices are rising.

The fund will also invest in other growth companies we believe have strong potential for earnings growth but do not own or develop natural resources.

BENEFITS AND RISKS

The fund is designed to help protect investors against inflation and provide a way to participate in the global demand for natural resources.

The fund is less diversified than most stock funds and could experience sharp price declines when conditions are unfavorable in the sector.

Investments in foreign securities may lose value due to declining currencies or adverse political or economic events overseas.

Investors should be able to accept the risk of a fund that may underperform when economic growth is slowing and the level of inflation is low.

INVEST WITH CONFIDENCE®

Definitions

Beta: A measure of market risk of an investment option that shows how responsive the investment is to a given market index, such as the Standard & Poor's 500 Index. By definition, the beta of the benchmark is 1.00. An investment with a beta of 1.10 is expected to perform 10% better than the index in up markets and 10% worse in down markets. Usually, higher betas represent riskier investments. Figures are calculated using monthly data and are net of fees.
