(1) Thomas White International, Ltd. ("TWI" or the "Advisor") has entered into a fee deferral/expense reimbursement agreement to defer its fees and/or reimburse the Fund to the extent that the operating expenses for Investor Class shares exceed (as a percentage of average daily net assets) 1.34%. Operating expenses include, without limitation, any fees or expenses incurred during the ordinary course of the Fund's business, but shall exclude interest, taxes, brokerage commissions, acquired fund fees and expenses, litigation, indemnification or any extraordinary expenses (as determined under generally accepted accounting principles) not incurred in the ordinary course of the Fund's business. As a result, the "Total Annual Fund Operating Expenses After Fee Deferral/Expense Reimbursement" shown above may be higher due to such excluded items. The fee deferral/expense reimbursement agreement expires February 28, 2022. The Fund has agreed to repay the Advisor for amounts deferred or reimbursed by the Advisor pursuant to the agreement provided that such repayment does not cause the Fund to exceed the above limits and the repayment is made within three years after the year in which the Advisor incurred the expense. The fee deferral/expense reimbursement agreement may only be amended or terminated by the Fund's Board of Trustees.

EXAMPLE

This Example is intended to help you compare the cost of investing in the Fund with the cost of investing in other mutual funds. The Example assumes that you invest $10,000 in the Fund for the time periods indicated and then redeem all of your shares at the end of those periods. The Example also assumes that your investment has a 5% return each year and that the Fund's operating expenses remain the same. The Example reflects the contractual fee deferral/expense reimbursement agreement for the first year. Although your actual costs may be higher or lower, based on these assumptions your costs would be:

	1 Year	3 Years	5 Years	10 Years
Investor Class	$ 136	$ 503	$ 894	$ 1,989

PORTFOLIO TURNOVER

The Fund pays transaction costs, such as commissions, when it buys and sells securities (or "turns over" its portfolio). A higher portfolio turnover rate may indicate higher transaction costs and may result in higher taxes when Fund shares are held in a taxable account. These costs, which are not reflected in Annual Fund Operating Expenses or in the Example, affect the Fund's performance. During the most recent fiscal year, the Fund's portfolio turnover rate was 31% of the average value of its portfolio.

PRINCIPAL INVESTMENT STRATEGIES OF THE FUND

Under normal circumstances, the Fund invests at least 80% of its net assets (plus borrowings for investment purposes, if any) in equity securities (consisting of common stocks, preferred stocks and convertible securities) of U.S. companies. In determining whether a company is located in or associated with the U.S., the

www.thomaswhitefunds.com 3

Advisor will consider any one of the following four factors when making its determination: (i) whether the company is organized in the U.S.; (ii) whether the U.S. is the primary securities trading market; (iii) whether the location of assets is in the U.S.; or (iv) whether the company derives at least half of its revenue or profits from the U.S. The Fund's investment policy with respect to 80% of its net assets may be changed by the Fund's Board of Trustees without shareholder approval as long as shareholders are given at least 60 days' advance written notice of the change.

The Advisor employs a valuation-oriented stock selection strategy and broad portfolio diversification. The Advisor will select most of the stocks held by the Fund from the approximately 800 companies in the Russell Midcap® Index. The Advisor currently researches over 4,000 issuers monthly and may purchase any of these securities for the Fund.

The Fund principally invests in mid- and small-size U.S. companies. The Fund may also invest in equity securities of larger size U.S. companies. Equity securities of mid- and small-size companies tend to have greater price fluctuations than larger, more established companies. The Advisor will attempt to manage this risk by normally owning securities issued by companies that represent a broad range of industries.

While the Advisor will primarily invest the assets of the Fund in U.S. companies, the Fund can invest up to 20% of its assets in non-U.S. equity securities, including those from emerging market countries.

TWI seeks to buy equity securities of companies at a value less than its research indicates to be their true worth. This is intended to produce a Fund portfolio with attractive relative valuation ratios, such as price-to-earnings and price-to-book. The Advisor may sell a security if it, among other reasons, no longer believes the security will contribute to meeting the investment objective of the Fund or other permissible investments are more attractive.

PRINCIPAL RISKS OF INVESTING IN THE FUND

General Risks: The Fund is designed to be appropriate for prudent investors who are seeking the historical long-term performance advantage of equities and who want growth of capital rather than current income. Shareholders should understand that all investments involve the risk of losing money. Past performance is not a prediction of future results.

Management Risk: There can be no guarantee against the loss of money resulting from an investment in the Fund, nor can there be any assurance that the Fund's investment objective will be attained. Further, the investment techniques and risk analyses employed by the Advisor may not produce the desired results. This could cause the Fund to lose value or its investment results to lag relevant benchmarks or other funds with similar investment objectives.

Market Risk: The Fund is subject to market risk, which is the risk that the value of a security may move up and down, sometimes rapidly and unpredictably, in response to economic or other conditions. In addition, changes in interest rates affect the value of portfolio securities held by the Fund and the operations of the issuers of the Fund's portfolio securities. There is a chance that stock prices overall will decline because stock markets tend to move in cycles, with periods of rising and falling prices. Events in the U.S. and global financial markets, including actions taken by the U.S. Federal Reserve or foreign central banks to stimulate or stabilize economic growth, may at times result in unusually high market volatility which could negatively affect performance. Further, geopolitical and other events, including war, terrorism, economic uncertainty, trade disputes and related geopolitical events have led, and in the future may lead, to increased short-term market volatility, which may disrupt securities markets and have adverse long-term effects on U.S. and world economies and markets.

Equity Securities Risk: In the short-term, the performance of equity securities may be volatile and unpredictable, and may produce greater negative returns than other asset classes. Equity securities may decline in value due to factors affecting equity securities markets generally or particular industries represented by those markets.

Small- and Mid-Capitalization Securities Risk: The Fund's investments in mid- and small-cap companies can involve more risk than investing in larger companies. Normally, these companies have more limited markets or product lines, and often more limited trading in their stocks. This can cause the prices of equity securities of these companies to be more volatile than those of large-cap issuers, or to decline more significantly during market downturns than the market as a whole.

Foreign Securities Risk: Holding equity securities of foreign companies can entail taking more risk than owning the securities of domestic companies as a result of disclosure, accounting, auditing and financial reporting standards and practices that differ from those to which U.S. issuers are subject. Political, economic and social developments in foreign countries may affect the operations of foreign companies or the value of their stocks. Foreign securities that are issued and traded in foreign currencies are subject to the risk that the value of a particular currency will change in relation to one or more other currencies. For instance, if the value of the U.S. dollar increases relative to a particular foreign currency, an investment denominated in that foreign currency will decrease in value because the investment will be worth fewer U.S. dollars. Investments in foreign securities may also be subject to the risks of seizure by a foreign government and imposition of restrictions on the exchange or transport of foreign currency or other economic sanctions. Further, transaction costs in foreign jurisdictions, including tax, brokerage and custody costs, may be higher, which can result in lower returns or decreased liquidity.

Emerging Markets and Less Developed Countries Risk: Securities of foreign issuers that are not in the developed market countries are subject to the same risks as securities of foreign issuers in developed market countries, but such risks may be more pronounced. The risks are greater because their social, political, legal and economic systems are frequently less stable, and exchange and regulatory effectiveness is often lower, than developed countries. These factors can make emerging market investments more volatile and less liquid than investments in developed markets.

Large Investor Risk: Ownership of shares of the Fund may be concentrated in one or more large investors. These investors may redeem shares in substantial quantities or on a frequent basis, which may negatively impact the Fund's performance, may increase realized capital gains, may accelerate the realization of taxable income to other shareholders and may potentially limit the use of available capital loss carryforwards or certain other losses to offset any future realized capital gains. Large investor redemption activity also may increase the Fund's brokerage and other expenses and could cause the Fund to experience losses or fail to maintain an economically viable size. If the Fund fails to maintain an economically viable size, it may cease operations, and investors may be required to liquidate or transfer their investments at inopportune times.

Liquidity Risk: In certain situations, it may be difficult or impossible to sell an investment and/or the Fund may sell certain investments at a price or time that is not advantageous in order to meet redemption requests or other cash needs. Unusual market conditions, such as an unusually high volume of redemptions or other similar conditions could increase liquidity risk for the Fund.

Value Investing Risk: Value investments are believed by the Advisor to be undervalued, but may not realize their perceived value for extended periods of time, may never realize their perceived value or may decline in price. In addition, this approach may produce returns below more aggressive equity funds, given the Advisor's efforts to limit risk. In addition, value securities, at times, may not perform as well as growth securities or the stock market in general, and may be out of favor with investors for varying periods of time.

FUND PERFORMANCE

The following bar chart and table indicate the risks of investing in the Fund by showing the annual returns of the Fund as of December 31, 2020 and long-term performance. Total return information reflects reimbursements of Fund expenses, in the absence of which total returns would have been lower. The returns include reinvestment of all dividends and distributions.

The bar chart represents the annual total returns of the Investor Class shares of the Fund. The bar chart demonstrates that returns will fluctuate from year to year. The Fund can experience short-term performance swings, as shown by the best and worst calendar quarter returns during the years depicted in the graphs.

The average annual total return table compares the Fund's average annual returns for the 1-, 5- and 10-year periods to those of broad-based securities market indices.

After-tax returns are calculated using the historical highest individual federal marginal income tax rates and do not reflect the impact of state and local taxes. Actual after-tax returns depend on the investor's tax situation and may differ from those shown. After-tax returns shown are not relevant to investors who hold their Fund shares through a tax-advantaged arrangement, such as a 401(k) plan or individual retirement account ("IRA"). In some cases, the after-tax returns may exceed the return before taxes due to an assumed benefit from any losses on a sale of shares at the end of the measurement period.

As with all mutual funds, past performance, before and after taxes, is not a prediction of future results. Updated information on the Funds investment performance can be obtained by visiting: <https://thomaswhitefunds.com/>.
