Fund Highlights and Applications

- Through a combination of an allocation to actively managed individual equity, passive equity, and actively managed fixed income, the fund seeks to exceed the total return of the S&P 500® Index.
- The allocation to actively managed individual equity via stocks, and passive equity via derivatives, is designed to provide exposure to large core equity. Remaining fund assets are invested in actively managed fixed income securities.
- Active and passive decisions seek to add value by tactically allocating to actively managed individual equity when stock picking opportunities are favorable.

Risk Considerations This fund may not be suitable for all investors. Investing in mutual funds involves risk and does not assure a profit. • Investments in large capitalization stocks may underperform other segments of the equity market or the equity market as a whole. • Growth stocks may be more volatile than other stocks because they are more sensitive to investor perceptions regarding the growth potential of the issuing companies. Value stocks are subject to the risk that the intrinsic value of the stock may never be realized by the market or that the price goes down. • The fund may invest in derivative instruments, which may be more volatile and less liquid, increasing the risk of loss when compared to traditional securities. Certain of the derivative instruments are also subject to the risks of counterparty default and adverse tax treatment. • The fund's use of leverage, through borrowings of instruments such as derivatives, may cause the fund to be more volatile than if it had not been leveraged. • The fund's investments in other investment vehicles subject the fund to those risks and expenses affecting the investment vehicle. • The fund may invest in foreign securities which carry additional risks when compared to U.S. securities, due to the impact of diplomatic, political or economic developments in the country in question (investments in emerging markets securities are generally subject to an even greater level of risks). • The fund may invest in fixed income securities whose market value will change in response to interest rate changes and market conditions among other factors. In general, bond prices rise when interest rates fall and vice versa. • The fund's exposure to high yield securities may subject the fund to greater volatility. • The fund may invest in bank loans and asset-backed securities, including mortgage backed, which involve special types of risk. • The Fund may invest in restricted securities which may involve financial and liquidity risk. • You may have a gain or loss when you sell your shares. • It is important to note that the Fund is not guaranteed by the U.S. government. • Please read the prospectus for more detailed information regarding these and other risks.

Index and Risk Definitions The S&P 500® Index tracks both the capital gains of stocks in the S&P 500 over time, and assumes that any cash distributions, such as dividends, are reinvested back into the index. The S&P 500 Index is a capitalization-weighted index of 500 stocks, actively traded in the U.S., designed to measure the performance of the broad economy, representing major industries. Trailing P/E ratio is the weighted average of each individual stock's P/E ratio. The P/E ratio of a stock is calculated by dividing the current price of the stock by its trailing 12-month's earnings per share. Price/Book ratio is the market price of a stock divided by the book value per share. Return on equity is net income divided by net worth. Three-year EPS growth rate is a weighted average of each stock holding's growth rate in earnings per share (EPS). EPS is total earnings divided by the number of shares outstanding. This measure is not a forecast of the fund's performance. Average Weighted Market Capitalization: The portfolio weighted mean capitalizations of all equity securities reward per unit of risk.
