Investment Commentary

International equity markets rose over the first half of 2021 and then seasawed in the second half amid concerns about inflation and COVID-19 variants. Overall, international developed markets posted strong results for the year. Economic growth in most developed market countries has rebounded to above pre-pandemic levels. However, the MSCI Emerging Markets Index declined 3%. China's stock market, in particular, dropped 22% due to the Chinese government's increased regulations across multiple industries. Internet-related companies were notably impacted, and the CSI China Internet Index tumbled 49%.

Valuations are above historical averages for the overall market, embedding expectations of continued earnings recovery. Wide valuation disparities remain between value and growth stocks,<sup>2</sup> as well as between the beneficiaries and victims of low interest rates. The MSCI EAFE Value Index currently trades at only 10.8 times forward earnings compared to a lofty 25.5 times for the MSCI EAFE Growth Index.<sup>3</sup> This market divergence is a remarkable 3.8 standard deviations above the historical average. Meanwhile, the valuation spread between stocks benefiting or suffering from low interest rates is at the all-time highest level since the International Stock Fund's inception in 2001. This valuation spread is extraordinary given the incredibly low level of nominal and real interest rates, and it reflects more certainty about the likelihood of interest rates staying lower for longer than we believe is merited.

We believe these two wide valuation disparities continue to provide attractive opportunities for active, value-oriented, bottom-up investment managers like Dodge & Cox. In particular, the Financials and Energy sectors constitute large portions of both the value and "low-rate victims" cohorts, and they currently account for 34% of the Fund. In 2021, we actively trimmed many of the Fund's holdings as they outperformed the overall market. Nevertheless, the Fund remains meaningfully overweight Financials and Energy. The Fund's Financials holdings are inexpensive, well capitalized, and on track to return meaningful amounts of capital to shareholders in 2022. Although rising interest rates are not a core part of our investment thesis, increases could further propel earnings growth. In Energy, capital return potential is also poised to increase, as oil prices have risen and management teams have restrained capital spending.

Another third of the portfolio has exposure to innovation-led earnings growth through reasonably valued technology, internet, and health care holdings. The Fund is about 1.4 times overweight the MSCI EAFE on a combined basis in these areas of the market. During 2021, Health Care was our largest add in the portfolio. As a result, the Fund's Health Care position increased from 12.3% at the beginning of 2021 to 17.7% at year-end. We added significantly to Sanofi, Novartis, GlaxoSmithKline, and Roche Holding—these pharmaceutical companies now represent four of the Fund's five largest positions.<sup>4</sup> We also started positions in two new health care services holdings: Olympus (the leading endoscope manufacturer, based in Japan) and Fresenius Medical Care (one of the largest global manufacturers of dialysis products and providers of dialysis services, domiciled in Germany).

The final third of the portfolio is diversified among the remaining sectors, notably Consumer Staples, Consumer Discretionary (excluding internet retail companies), and Industrials. As valuations became more attractive, we added meaningfully to Consumer Staples this past year. Nevertheless, the Fund's exposure to these sectors is roughly half the weight of the benchmark.

We are enthusiastic about the opportunities we see as a value-oriented, active manager. As always, we remain focused on the long term, and encourage our shareholders to do so as well. Thank you for your continued confidence in Dodge & Cox.
