Plain talk about risk

An investment in the fund could lose money over short or even long periods. You should expect the fund's share price and total return to fluctuate within a wide range, like the fluctuations of the overall stock market. The fund's performance could be hurt by:

Investment risk: The chance that the fund's advisor will take positions in securities, intentionally or unintentionally, that increase the fund's sensitivity to certain investment factors. These factors may include market capitalization of underlying securities, growth and/or value spread, and other factors. These factors may cause the fund to fail to achieve its investment objective of limiting exposure to general stock market risk, or cause it to underperform other funds with a similar investment strategy.

Manager risk: The chance that poor security selection will cause the fund to underperform relevant benchmarks or other funds with a similar investment objective.

Strategy risk: The chance that the fund's investment strategy will not succeed. There is no guarantee that the fund will be able to limit exposure to general stock market risk or produce returns that exceed the returns of 3-month Treasury bills. The fund's use of short sales in combination with its long positions in an attempt to improve performance or to reduce overall portfolio risk may not be successful and may result in greater losses or lower positive returns than if the fund held only long positions.

Short selling risk: The chance that the fund will lose money in connection with its short sales of securities.

Derivatives risk: Investments in derivatives may involve risks different from, and possibly greater than, those of investments in the underlying securities, assets, or market indexes.
